About Createch 2020

The ‘Ones to Watch’ 100 identifies UK-based Createch pioneers based across the UK working in creative disciplines from visual effects to fashion, design to digital theatre, animation to advertising. The names have been chosen because they are innovating to develop new experiences, services, products, and social benefits using advanced uses of mixed reality, artificial intelligence, and smart data combined with human creativity. The companies have been nominated by bodies including Digital Catapult, UKRI, London & Partners and the Department for International Trade, that see the potential of these businesses to build on the UK’s international reputation in both creative and technology areas.

The creative and digital industries combined contributed more than £250bn to the UK economy in 2018 and were one of the fastest-growing sources of value and job creation for the country.

About the Creative Industries Council

The Council focuses on areas where there are barriers to growth facing the UK creative industries, such as access to finance, skills, export markets, regulation, intellectual property (IP), diversity, and infrastructure. Council members are leading figures drawn from across the creative and digital industries including TV, advertising, computer games, fashion, music, arts, publishing and film.

The website, www.thecreativeindustries.co.uk, fulfils the CIC’s role to promote the UK’s creative industries both in the UK and abroad.
